COLORED MEN IN COUNCIL.

New Jersey's Solid Sable Citizens to the Front.

Second Day of the Convention-The Delegate Who Fought and Bled-Walker on the Rampage-Attempt to Endorse General Van Buren-Miscegenation Denounced-An Indecent Oratorical Display.

The New Jersey Colored Men's Convention concluded their labors yesterday in New Brunswick, after holding a potracted and stormy session of two days' duration. On the first day there was an average attendance of delegates from the principal counties in the State, the absentees being mostly from the remote districts. Yesterday a "yost significant diminution in the different delegations was observable—only about thirty of the colored fra-frinity being in their seats. It is presumed that on account of the heated and acrimonious discussions, and the intense confusion that prevailed their proceedings on Tuesday, the fugitives became discouraged and timid. The irrepressible John Taylor, or Essex, and the enthusiastic Walker, of Trenton—the leading spirits in the conclave—proved true to their pledges and waited till the closing hour arrived. Mr. Taylor was not quite so captious yesterday as on the preceding day. He conducted himself in a more creditable manner altogether.

At nine o'clock the morning session was opened, when some matters of minor importance were discussed. A resolution was adopted, calling on the General Committee to appoint a sub-committee in every county, town and village in the State to ascertain the number of colored voters, with a view to the compilation of a roll list at the time of election. Debate then ensued on the Civil Rights bill, and also on a report submitted by the Com-mittee on Education, during which Mr. Woodlin, of Mercer, in his customary humorous strain, took a leading part. He urged the right of every colored child to be ad-mitted to all the public schools.

The Committee on Civil Rights here made a report, in-structing the Central Committee to issue an address to the people and prepare a petition, to be presented to the

NOTHING BUT GASHITL'S TRUNFET

MAIF resurrect him." As soon as this was read, Mr. Woodin arose and said:—"Brudders, how is dat for high? Dat's ten times better than I could do." This quaint remark brought down the house, when Mr. Bagwell sprang ap and moved the adoption of all the resolutions with the exception of the one quoted. This brought Walker to his feet, who said:—"Dere are seme colored citizens as well as dose of de white race who can be bought up." His ebject was "to prevent any man in the form of a man to smill himself should be obstracted." A fair-complexioned delegate on the platform suddenly burst into paroxysms of passionate clostracted." Not all the money in New Jarrey could buy him. He did not despise a man became he voted a democratic ticket. If such men did not do so there would be no democratic party. The good and bad were here contrasted by the speaker with

Molasses would catch more fires than vinegar, because the acid in the vinegar was too strong for the insects. It was so with an honest colored citizen. He was too strong to be penetrated by bribery. A Hunterdon man here warned the Convention against passing unfeeling, diagreeable and unnatural resolutions. After a very spicy debate, during which Brother Woodin frequently chimed in the objectionable resolution was withdrawn by the removmed Walker. The other resolutions were adopted, the

"Resolved, That this Convention earnestly solicits from the friends of General van Burien an eminent soldier and statesman, the necessity of demanding either his acquittal or guilt, and although stricken down by injustice through partisan feeling, the colored men of New Jersey will not desert him in the hour of his adversity." (The orthography of this resolutions was execurable). This embryo orator proceeded to defend General van Buren in a forcible speech, during which he paid a high compliment to the Vienna Commissioner for the friendship he had always shown to the colored race. "The colored citizens of New Jersey never desert their friends in the hour of adversity," said Mr. Taylor, with an emphatic gesture. The adoption of this resolution was firmly opposed by the Rev. Mr. Morris, who stated that as the case of the General was now pending before our government such a resolution was premature.

A brief discussion took place on the subject, when it was referred to the Commistice on Resolutions.

A resolution was adopted to the effect "that political tricksters and office-holders, of whatever party, cannot and shall not receive our

At twenty minutes to three o'clock the Convention was again called to order, consisting this time of fourteen delegates (including officers), two "brethren" of the female persuasion, two reporters and three white men, with a sable individual (the latter attired in a capacious sengaces uncluding oncerns, two reporters and three white men, with a sable individual (the latter attired in a capacious geariet shirt, who were present as spectators. Eventually the Chairman thought fit to call him to order. It is said there were ladies pre-t, and he did not want them insulted. These remarks were endorsed by the Rev. Ar. Walker. The long-winded Taylor than gave another exhibition of his enduring qualities of stumporatorship, when he was replied to by Walker. The resolution in reference to General van Buren was then withdrawn.

A resolution was adopted appointing a committee of the to represent them at the Centennial Convention in 1876. n 1876. A resolution was adopted giving the thanks of the Convention to the President and secretaries, and also to the citizens of New Brunswick for their kindness and hos-

An adjournment size die then toek place.

The following are some of the remarks of the delegate from Union, who was called to order:—He said that, the colored people were too fond of this social equality with the whites; he alluded especially to the solored ladies.

In the dark days of slavery they excused the familiar intercourse existing botween themselves and their white oppressors by alleging that they were torced to submit to it; but now, when the old state of things had passed away, and this excuse no longer existed, so far from avoiding the advances of the white men they absolutely courted a senewal of their former intimace. If this state of things was not checked in a hundred years there would not be a colored man in America. Already mulatto children were becoming disgracefully plentiful. How was it possible that a white child could be horn from black parents? Yet it was the case in many instances."

A mass meeting, addressed by speakers of both sexes,
was held in the evening.

SWINDLING UNTUTORED JERSEYMEN. A Smart Young Man Who is Not a Son of Dr. McCosh, of Princeton. of Dr. McCosh, of Princeton.

For the second or third time Dr. McCosh's name has been used to promote a swindle. One day last week a stylish looking young man made his appearance in the classical suburb of Princeton and immediately went the rounds of the stores, and, making little purchases, got said conversations with the innocent and gullible tradespeople, may hich be casually asked the names of the aroundment citizens of the place. Armed with these people, may hich he casually asked the names of the prominent citizens of the place. Armed with these weapons of his art, he forthwith proceeded to use them upon the rustic gentry, though not with very signal success. Calling upon one Colonel Emmons, he made himself known as the son of President McCosh, of Princeton College, and in the course of the talk complained that his father was out of town and he had asglected to draw from paternal liberality sufficiently to keep him supplied with ready money. Having engaged the sympathies of the friendly Colonel, he readily obtained a loah of $25. He called upon other citizens, but none of them 'could seen't except Streeper, the college eigar man, who would so early except Streeper, the college eigar man, who would so oner abut up shop than dishotor a draft of them 'could seen't except Streeper, the college eigar man, who would so oner abut up shop than dishotor a draft public to be credit of a McCosh, and who was thereby maletons credit of a McCosh, and who was thereby maletons for him but he did not personste Dr. Polit of horses for him; but he did not personste Dr. Polit of horses for him; but he did not personste both he made off, and would doubtless have escaped if a Princeton of horses for him; but he did not personste both on the capacity of a watchman of Bordentown, and had there seen here, of course. He gave his name as Andrew Oreevy, and he avers that he has been a student at law, formerly and here has a count in Princeton. He has a deam aliasea, and the gossip is also that he formerly was employed in a New York house with which a son of Dr. McCosh is connected.

CHINESE JUSTICE AND JUDGMENT.

Sentence of the Alleged Assassin of a Prince General-" Cut to Pieces and His Heart Offered in the Ancestral Hall" of the Victim.

The Peking Gazette of the latest date, by mail, contains a memorial from the Governor of Shantung, reporting the arrest of the murderer of Seng-ko-lin-sen, whose name is familiar to for-eigners as Commander of the Imperial Chinese eigners as Commander of the Imperial Chinese Army during the campaign of 1860, and as having taken prisoners Sir Harry Parkes and his companions in September of that year. The Prince fell while on a campaign against the Nienfei in Shantung, in the Spring of 1865, and his body was taken to Peking with great pomp during thatyear. Various rumors were current as to the manner of his death. The first report was that he had been killed in an engagement, but it was subsequently ascertained beyond doubt that he was assassinated, though why, or by whom, has never been clearly shown. It was believed, however, that some of his own soldiers were the culprits; and the statement in the Gazette, therefore, about this tardy capture of his murderer in the person of a rebel named Chang Ling-yun is guestionable. However, the captor is to be promoted and Chang Ling-yun is to be cut to pieces and his heart offered at Seng-ko-lin-sin's ancestral hall, in order to "display the justice of the laws of the Empire and rejoice the hearts of the people."

SUSPICION OF WIFE MURDER.

A labering man named Thomas Mitchell, residing at 29
Ash street, Greenpoint, was arraigned before Justice Elliott, Williamsburg, yesterday, on suspicion of having murdered his wife, she having been found dead at her home on Tuesday. After a careful investigation it was found that the woman was an habitual drankard, and that quarrels between her busband and herself on that account were of frequent occurrence. Mitchell's mother-in-aw made the charge against him, and the justice held Mitchell to await the result of an inquest by Coroner Whitehill, so that a rull investigation of the case could be made.
